Jaz, Romeo!

Čas, v katerem sem živel, je že zdavnaj minil. Najbolj me je strah tega, da me bodo najbližji pozabili in da bo moje največje žrtvovanje - smrt moje prelepe Julije - pozabljeno. Sedaj tukaj osamljen bledim, brez velike ljubezni, in opazujem svet, ki sem ga že pred nekaj časa zapustil. Vidim pobotani družini, za katerih združenje sem plačal najvišjo ceno, smrt moje preljube Julije. Vedno bolj bledim in strah me je tem bolj, saj ne vem, ali me bo v nebesih čakala ona, na katero me veže ljubezen kot veriga. Spomini na najine minule srečne čase mi trgajo srce.

Obup in žalost mi sedaj polnita srce. Le-to je otopelo in išče svojo srečo, ki je še ni našlo. Zemlja, do katere me veže veriga, ne bo nikoli popustila. Sedaj tukaj navzgor bledim, belim nebesom naproti, saj v teh črnih nebesih nič več ne moram spremeniti.

Tavam k belim nebesom in upam, da čakaš me ti tam. O, sreča, ki vidijo jo moje oči ...

My dad

The person I am going to describe is someone I see nearly every day. He isn't always at home though. He is a family member. More importantly, he is my dad.

He's a quite tall man in his fifties. His hair is short, just a little bit longer than mine. It's black, but he has some gray strands due to his age. His face is mostly average compared to an older man. He has some wrinkles, his cheeks are sometimes rosy and he gets very red in the face when he works hard at home. I'm not sure about his eyes, but I believe they're brown. He naturally doesn't keep a beard, but he sometimes gets a bit hairy if he doesn't shave. His nose and ears are typical, nothing too special about them. The last special feature on his face would be the eyebrows, since they're a bit thicker than average.

I would say he is a tall man for his age, although I wouldn't know how tall he actually is. His body is athletic, but it's definitely something not too noticeable at first glance. He does a lot of repairing and mechanical work around the house, which wore the skin on his hands quite a bit. His skin otherwise is a bit tanned, but not too much.

Now on to his personality. He definitely isn't a cheerful guy, but he isn't grumpy or mean either. He's more of an in-between kind of person, but he can be very happy and friendly occasionally. He also likes joking around, either with his coworkers and friends or with us. He has a very tiring job, which is driving far away to nearby countries several times a week. He uses his van to deliver things for the company he works for.

After a long day, my dad can be quite grumpy and rather tired- again due to all the things he has to do. Luckily, he isn't always like that. It can happen that he's pretty stressed out when he leaves for work or when the company he works for messes something up. But in the end he still works very well compared to the other drivers. Since he drives to Germany or Italy a lot, he knows German very well, along with a small bit of English and decent Croatian.

All and all, I really like my dad and I'm glad I have him. He is hardworking, caring and just amazing in general. Sure, he can be a bit grouchy or annoying, but I don't mind it.

Kdo sem, od kod sem in kam sem namenjena

Sem Anja Strelec in prihajam iz Jastrebccev. Sem članica velike družine. Imam tri sestre, mamu in očeta. Sestre se imenujejo Sara, Aneja in Maja. Mami je ime Zlatka, očetu pa Mirko. Oba sta po poklicu kmetovalca.

Naša družina se od ostalih razlikuje po tem, da smo rejniška družina. Aneja, Maja in Sara so otroci v rejništvu, sama pa sem posvojena. Skupaj smo že od malega in se imamo zelo radi.

Doma imamo veliko kmetijo, za katero vsi vzorno skrbimo. Smo ljubeča družina, v kateri drug drugega podpiramo pri vsaki odločitvi.

Osnovno šolo sem obiskovala v Miklavžu pri Ormožu. Vsa leta sem bila odlična. Še posebej sem ponosna na svoj uspeh v 8. in 9. razredu. V osmem razredu sem se udeležila državnega tekmovanja iz matematike in biologije, v devetem pa sem na Cankarjevem tekmovanju prejela srebrno priznanje in zasedla 4. mesto v regiji.

V prostem času sem štiri leta igrala diatonično harmoniko in klaviature, vendar sem oboje opustila, ker nisem imela dovolj časa.

V prostem času zelo rada berem in brskam po spletu. Sprva sem menila, da bi bilo bolje, če bi šla v gimnazijo in kasneje nadaljevala šolanje na Filozofski fakulteti, smer bibliotekarstvo, ampak sem ugotovila, da bodo knjige v papirnati vezavi v bližnji prihodnosti izginile. Zato sem se tudi vpisala v ERŠ Ptuj, smer tehnik računalništva. Po nekaj mesecih pa imam druge cilje in želje. Želim se vpisati na Fakulteto za management in pravo Ljubljana. Torej je zdaj moj cilj uspešno končati srednjo šolo in se vpisati na željeno fakulteto.

Rada bi tudi urejala spletne strani za podjetja. V bistvu imam veliko ciljev, ki jih pa ne znam ubesediti.

Ugotovila sem, da bom morala v času šolanja šolske knjige trdo prijeti v roke in manj pomembne zadeve odložiti na stran. Še posebej knjige, kar pa bo težko. Knjige mi predstavljajo svobodo in še eno življenje zraven resničnega. Življenje, v katerem lahko počnem, kar želim, in se učim stvari, ki jih hočem vedeti.

Torej prihajam iz družine, ki me podpira pri odločitvah in me vzpodbuja pri uresničevanju ciljev. Imam knjige, šolo in prijatelje, torej vse, kar si želim.

Being a teenager

My name is Vid and I am 17 years old. I come from a small country in Europe called Slovenia. I live with both of my parents and a younger brother. I will tell you about my life as a teenager.

Currently I am a student in high school. I study computer engineering. Sometimes I wonder why I even picked this school. Of course everyone wants to be a programmer and make games and write code, but the way to that is like learning a completely new language. I've been wondering about my life lately. I am still free, free to make any decision in life. There are so many things I want to do, but sadly I am not an adult yet, so my parents are holding me back. Being a teenager can be really rough but at the same time it's when you start realising the meaning of life, what you want to do and become. I think that every teenager should first think what he wants to do and become and only focus on that. It doesn't matter what others say. Everyone that's successful had many people hating on them telling them they were never going to make it. Most teenagers would listen to them, because they don't have enough selfconfidence, but some of them wouldn't even care about other's opinion. If you want something very badly it doesn't matter what they say.

But the most important thing about being a teenager is the way you are raised. The knowledge and skills your parents give you in early ages will be helpful for eternity. Of course when you are a teen you are very stubborn and you don't want to listen to anybody, but my personal experience is that family always wants the best for you or at least they think they do. Sometimes they may hate your decision, but it's your life, so be what you want to be and you will be happy. I am experiencing that the new generation of teens is a lot less confident and they listen to others saying how bad they are. I really think they need a person telling them they can do it and give them motivation. It is also in your teenage years when you hit puberty and that's one of the reasons you become so stubborn, but on the upper hand maybe that's a good thing. It's also when you start falling in love and getting girls, but what I currently think is that there are no serious relationships at this age. I have been in one, but after the break up I realised that girls are only holding you back from being successful. Become successful and they will come themselves. Of course it's nice to love someone and even nicer to be loved, but think about all the things you could do while spending so much time with your girlfriend. You are still young, you have your whole life ahead of you so start living it! There is nobody holding you back. You just have to start.

Being a teenager can be rough, but I think we need someone standing by our side telling us we are doing fine and giving us motivation.

The End

The city of Guimarães

The sunny and warm streets of Guimarães are filled not only with art, but also by nice people who greet travelers with a kind voice. I can say that the city itself is an art museum, where you don't need to buy a ticket.

As you step into the birthplace of Portugal you can spot one of the oldest buildings with a large quote: "Portugal was born here." They call it the birthplace of Portugal because in the 11th-12th century Spanish Queen had a fight with her son, who got so enraged that he chose to go on his own so he established the first foundations that Portugal was built upon.

The city is very large and it has over 80000 people living there. People are very kind, helpful and friendly. I experienced this by talking to the townspeople. When I asked for directions, there were a lot of people who didn't know how to speak English, but I still received help from them.

One of the things that got my attention was their food. It tasted different from the food I was used to, but I still enjoyed it very much. The thing that bothered/surprised me, was the way they prepare meat. The meat was almost raw in every dish. Nevertheless I loved it.

Guimarães is considered as a city of art. In 2012 they replaced the old town market with a big art museum with an art platform in front of it. Afterwards, the city's reputation started to grow faster. In the narrow streets of this beautiful city you can admire the amazing street art and graffiti.

Besides art, the city is also impacted by amazing architecture. Old buildings, built with massive stone blocks, huge churches and large parks barely scratch the surface of these magnificent builds. Buildings are decorated with dyed tiles, carvings and patterns. You can also see a small castle on top of a hill, with the statues of the founding father and the king of Portugal standing in front of it. If you look around the city, you can find small pools, where most of the old ladies come and wash their clothes on hand. They do not consider it hard work, because they meet in groups and they turn washing clothes into a small get-together. Another interesting thing I spotted were similar small pools, which were used for dyeing leather 5 centuries ago.

The city of Guimarães is a big beautiful city, where you can admire art, history and the connection with people. There are a lot of places to visit. All in all, I can say that you cannot get bored there and that surprises await around every corner.

SAILING TRIP

I'm going to tell you a story about how we nearly got stranded on an island in the middle of a dark storm. It was quite an experience living through that. The story begins with me, Tom and Jimmy deciding one day that we should take a sailing trip since the holidays were right around the corner. Jimmy came up with the idea since he had been sailing for quite a while as a hobby and he really enjoyed it, so he wanted to hang out with some friends for a good time. Me and Tom agreed to come with him, although I had never gone sailing in my life. Tom had been on a couple of cruises so he knew what it was like.

Jimmy was the one in charge of the boat. He knew exactly how to prepare for the voyage and told us what to bring with us and where to meet. I was going to be the cook on the boat, and luckily, both Jimmy and Tom actually like my cooking, unlike the rest of my family. The main reason Tom wanted to go was that he could fish. He had never done it, he had only fished at a river bank or at a pond near his house.

Then the day came when we were going to set sail. We were running a bit late because we had to carry all the supplies we had packed up. It was going to be a short trip, just one day out at the sea. He showed us the boat we were going to be on and it was quite gorgeous – a nice white boat with the name »Battlestar« on the front and the back of it. The exterior was looking pretty, there was a bench on each side of the deck, along with a steering wheel in the middle. The sail was white and blue, split between the middle. We went inside and there were a lot of things for such a small space. There were 3 bedrooms, a kitchen and a place with a big round chair with the table in the middle and a small bathroom at the side. It seemed like a pretty cozy place. Jimmy had already set the course where we were going.

We were going around a nearby island not too far away from the mainland. The island was named »Barebone Island«, due to the fact it had next to nothing on it, and it was pretty long as well. Jimmy got to the wheel and powered up the engine and we sailed off. The weather was fine as we sailed out but there was a dark storm in the distance. We didn't really mind it since it wasn't heading our way. Using the engine we got far out into the sea and turned the engine off. Jimmy needed our help controlling the sail. We pulled it out and it had already swung us out on one side. It was pretty easy to do so we weren't all that worried.

A huge mistake that Jimmy made was that he hadn't checked the weather forecast before we left. The huge storm we had seen earlier was coming right towards us. Since we had already sailed around the island we decided to stop midway and parked near a bank at the island. We were still semi close to home but far enough that we couldn't come back immediately. It started to rain pretty heavily the moment the dark clouds got above us. We all went inside and layed down on our beds. We were slightly worried since the storm was really shaking up the sea and it rocked us back and forth. After the rain came the wind and it battered us around even more. We suddenly heard a loud snap outside the boat. Jim panicked and immediately went to check it out. He was shocked at what he saw. The main part of the sail had broken off into the ocean, and a lot of things had been trashed and thrown around the boat. He tried to rev up the engine but to no avail. It just wouldn't turn on for the life of him.

Jimmy ran in to tell us the situation that had happened. We had to calm him down for quite a while since he had never experienced anything like that. We went to the radio station and called for help. The signal was shoddy but we could barely call out for help and tell the rescue team our location. All we had to do was wait for them. The storm weakened only slightly, enough so that we didn't have to worry as much. We had a pack of cards so we were playing cards while we were waiting. The cards occasionally slid around due to the strong wind and the waves wobbling the boat. Luckily, none of us got sea sick.

Merely an hour passed until rescue finally arrived. We were very happy that they came as fast as they did and we quickly got our essentials and went onto their rescue boat. Jimmy was sad that he couldn't do anything but he was glad he hadn't used his own boat. He said that he had rented it and was glad he had insured it if anything would have gone wrong.

After a quick trip back to the mainland we hung out at the beach until nighttime. At least Tom got the chance to catch some fish – it may not have been on the boat but it was just fine doing it at the beach. He caught a fish and I cooked it for a nice fulfilling meal. Afterwards we went home with an experience we would remember for a long time.

Money won't buy you love, but it will buy you everything else

Today I am going to talk about money and whether loved people live a happier life than the rich ones.

First let's start with a simple fact that money really can't buy you love, but if you had a chance to decide whether you would be rich or whether you would be loved, which one would you actually pick? The world used to be a nicer place. People used to be less stressed and they would always pick love over money, but in the 21st century a lot of this changed, because the world is ruled by those who have money, and not by those who want justice and equality.

But let us focus on the main topic here which is why everyone says rich people aren't happy. I think that opinion is completely false and said by those who are not among them. If you are rich it doesn't mean you can't have truthful friends and a loving wife. If you are greedy and unloyal you will and also should be sad. What about people who built their way among the richest? They used to have their friends and their wives before they were rich and they kept them close when they got rich. A lot of people say that money changes you and that it makes you greedy, but I think that the only way it can happen is if you let it happen. It's always great to have money, but don't let it make you greedy. You should be the one ruling the money, not the other way around.

I would also like to mention my personal thoughts about money and love. Love is something special, but money is something unique. You should focus on yourself and your happiness first and it is completely up to you how you live your life.

I think it's better to put work and effort in yourself and success will boost up your motivation and bring you happiness. In the end it doesn't matter if you are rich or loved all it matters is that you are happy.

"Horoscope" for May 2016

Aries:

Pigeons are living in your wheel wells. • The hardest part is ahead. Stay home and rest. • Your next career: pubic stylist • Your enemies are massing at the borders.

Taurus:

You will get a phone call that will change your life as it relates to pizza. • Your socks don't match. • Walk it off. • An argument over a parking ticket will lead to romantic entanglement.

Gemini:

You will receive a job offer from a prostitute. • The Feds want to talk about your surfing habits. • Your next career: skeptic • Adopt a chicken.

Cancer:

You will receive a phone call from a Norwegian. • Sure, you're tough. Yikes! • Your next career: chimney sweep • You will get a worthless coupon in the mail.

Leo:

Against all odds, you will accomplish a basic task. • It's probably just a big freckle. No worries. • Your next career: sketch artist • Eat out more, but eat less when you're out.

Virgo:

That smell IS you. Seriously. • Your carpet will stop matching your curtains. • They wouldn't have said it if they didn't mean it. • Your lucky number is a bakers dozen.

Libra:

You will surrender to mediocrity. • It's okay to isolate, as long as you don't do it alone. • Your next career: mime • Adopt a chicken.

Scorpio:

Check your voicemail. • You will scratch yourself at the absolute wrong time. • Your next career: gay prison guard • Succeeding at sucking is not really success.

Sagittarius:

Chewing gum will save your life this week. • You will fart in front of a large group tomorrow. • Your next career: spit polisher • You will develop an attractive skin condition.

Capricorn:

You will receive a phone call with an incredible offer about long distance. Take it! • Stay away from the parrot. • It's as bad as you think. • You will discover a new and appalling skill.

Aquarius:

Your car will begin pulling slightly to the center. • Your weight problem is not why people don't like you. • Your next career: sad clown painter. • Your lucky number is a bakers dozen.

Pisces:

Your next shower will be interrupted by a large mildly poisonous insect. • You miss the toilet more than you think. • Your next career: Wal-Mart greeter • An argument over a parking ticket will lead to romantic entanglement.

Eine besondere Lehrerin

Eine besondere Lehrerin auf der Elektro und Computerschule Ptuj ist Monika Čeh. Sie kommt immer pünktlich und ist immer für den Unterricht vorbereitet. Sie weiß uns den Unterrichtsstoff interessant zu machen und erklärt uns es so, dass wir alles verstehen. Sie ärgert sich auch nicht wie andere Lehrer, wenn man ihr sagt, dass man den Stoff nicht versteht. Sie erklärt es freundlicher weißt noch einmal, wenn es sein soll. Deshalb ist sie eine besondere Lehrerin.
